NEW: Sacristans Needed...Can You Help?

Can you give 1 hour a month of your precious time for the Lord?

A sacristan has the following duties and responsibilities:

maintain working sacristy by washing chalices, ciboriums and wine decanters, filling the host drawer, cleaning candle toppers, extinguishers and catchers, washing and drying altar cloths (occasionally), towels and purificators (cloth used to wipe chalice at Mass). You can work at your own pace and at your convenience. The Sacristan Ministry is a worthwhile, grace filled volunteer opportunity. Come give it a try and see what it's all about! If interested, please call Priscille at: 603-759-1040.

Parish Scout Troop 272 Holiday Wreath Orders

Many of our parishioners normally order their holiday wreaths from the parish scout troop at our yearly Holiday Craft Fair. This year, for your convenience, the scouts will be set up to take orders before and after Masses on the weekends of:

11/21-11/22 and 11/28-11/29.

Pickup will be on the weekend of: 12/5-12/6.

If you have any questions please call: 603-320-5677.

Living the Liturgy at Home Feast of Christ the King

Prayer

Lord our God, just as the rain comes down to water the earth and make it fruitful, so you send forth your word to do your will in the world. May this wisdom from heaven take root in our hearts and bear fruit in holy words and loving deeds. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Conversation Questions

Today we honor Christ our King! Jesus is not like the kings of this world. How would you describe Jesus as King? How would you describe the Kingdom of God?

Why does Jesus want us to help everyone, even the people who live far away and those we have never met?

Faith in Action

Has your family participated in clothing drives or volunteer programs in nursing homes, stocked food pantries, cared for elderly neighbors, responded to the needs of immigrants, or prayed for those in prison? Choose one of these suggestions and put it into practice this week.

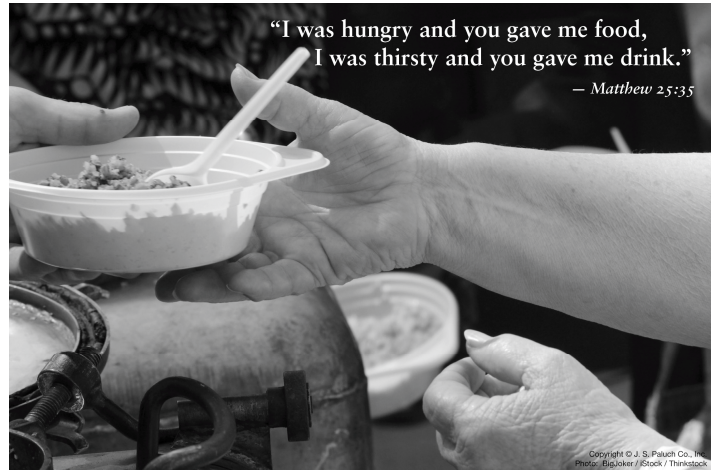

Did you know?

...that Pope Pius XI made Christ the King a feast day on the Church's calendar in 1925? This feast day marks the end of the liturgical year and it calls to mind that, although there are rulers, heads of state, and other government officials throughout the earth, our one true King rules heaven and earth and the Kingdom of God will reign for all time.

Feast of Christ the King

REFLECTIONS

By Bishop Christian

Way back in 1923, a high level meeting was held in Chicago's Edgewater Beach Hotel. Nine of the most powerful people in the United States were there. They included the president of the nation's largest steel company, the president of the nation's largest gas company, and the president of the nation's largest utility company. Twenty-five years later, where were these powerful tycoons? Three had died penniless, three had committed suicide, two were in prison and one had gone insane. The fates of these business people illustrate the point that Jesus makes in the gospel when he says, "What does it benefit a person if he gains the whole world, but loses his soul?" (Mk 8:36) As we rapidly approach the end of the Church's liturgical year, this is as good question for us to ponder. These Sundays we are instructed to contemplate the end of the world and the end of our individual lives. And we know not when they will come. When they do, what will our lives have meant? What will they have produced? If we have accumulated many good things, but do not leave behind a world with more love in it, what shall we say to the Lord? If we have reached the pinnacle of our chosen profession, but in the wake of our success, leave behind dishonesty, broken lives and broken hearts, how will we explain that to Christ? Looked at from the end, what in our lives should we change now while we have the chance? These are good questions at any time, but especially at this time of year.

All Saints Day

November 1 – Solemnity

Liturgical Color: White

Heaven is populated with uncanonized holy men and women known to God alone.

Martyrs were so revered in the early Church that their places and dates of death were sanctified by the candles, prayers, and votive offerings of the faithful grateful for their witness. So many were the martyrs, though, that by the early fourth-century it became impossible to solemnize each individually on the Church's crowded calendar. There thus arose, over centuries, and in different ways in different regions, the custom of commemorating the memory of all the holy ones on one specific day of the year. By the early eighth-century, a Feast of All Saints was celebrated in Rome on November 1. The Feast was extended to the entire Church in the next century.

The universal sanctoral calendar of the Catholic Church is like a saint's All-Star team. Only the most talented make the cut. There are many more canonized saints besides those on the universal calendar. Some saints are commemorated only locally or regionally, others are historically obscure, and still others did not give a sufficiently universal witness to merit inclusion on the Church's universal calendar. The Church defines a saint as a soul enjoying the Beatific Vision in heaven. So, besides the famous saints found on the universal calendar and the lesser-known saints not on that calendar, there are still many more souls in heaven not officially recognized as saints at all. These are the saints we celebrate in a particular way today.

The Solemnity of All Saints commemorates all those holy men, women, children, martyrs, confessors and unknown others who lived lives of such holiness that upon death they either entered directly into God's presence in heaven or duly purified their soul of every imperfection in purgatory before then advancing into His presence. All-Star saints such as Saint Augustine and Saint Francis of Assisi stand shoulder to shoulder in heaven with forgotten grandmas, quiet uncles, and unknown martyrs. These unrecognized but holy souls did not convert entire tribes, found religious communities, or have their bones crushed by the jaws of lions in the arena. Maybe they just kept their mouth shut when they had just the right words to humiliate a family member. Magnanimity. Perhaps they cooked dinner night after night for their family out of a sense of duty, while they gazed out the kitchen window, dreaming of another life far away doing greater deeds. Humility. Or maybe they refused to cooperate with an immoral boss and lost their job, never to recover financially, their dreams ruined for a principled stance. Fortitude.

The dense population of heaven is unknown to us on earth, but not to God, the audience of One we should most desire to please. There are as many pathways to God as there are people, since God wants to make a project of each and every one of us. All the saints lived heroic lives in their own unique ways. Some were the steeple to the village, seen by all and inspiring others to greatness. But most saints had lower profiles. They were more like the squat stone blocks forming the church's foundation, silently holding up the entire structure. They received little notice or credit despite buttressing the entire building. Without their support the church, and all of its flash, would collapse. Today we commemorate those silent and sturdy ones who, without cease and without complaint, buttressed the family, the marriage, the parish, the Church, the community, the faith. Among the communion of saints are some few illustrious citizens whose virtues sparkle on their special days. But today we honor, remember, and seek to imitate that broader population of heaven never raised to the public altars but who offered their lives in quiet ways to God. They received the Body of Christ and lived His teachings in an exemplary manner in season and out of season until all seasons converged and God called them back to Himself.

All holy men and women, so close to us yet still so far, gather our prayers to yourselves and intercede in heaven on our behalf. May our holy desires be accomplished through that chorus of prayers you constantly present to the Father surrounded by all His angels in heaven.
